New Uses is now open at 4305 Westbrook Drive, in the Fox Valley Mall outer loop, near Route 59 and Ogden Avenue. They are open seven days a week. New Uses is part of a national chain with hundreds of stores planned nationwide. Chicagoland New Uses® stores are owned by Naperville resale expert Elaine Krieger, who also has 12 suburban resale stores under the Clothes Mentor®, Plato's Closet® and Once Upon A Child® banners.

First Community Bank Naperville announced plans to move to a new location at Naperville Plaza. The plans to renovate an existing retail space in Naperville Plaza were approved by Naperville City Council at a meeting in May. First Community Bank is renovating a storefront that has a history of banking. The location was home to Washington Bank & Trust in the 1970's, founded by a group of local businessmen including Dick Wehrli. The group got together to form a community bank – they invested their own money and the funds were loaned out to local businesses. Wehrli's son, Scott Wehrli, holds a similar role on the Advisory Board at First Community Bank – Naperville. Bank officials say they will be updating and upgrading the retail space and adding a drive through lane around the building with plans to open by late fall. The bank will be moving from its temporary location at 2728 W. 75th Street.

Patrons can now access library material 24 hours a day using a new mobile app for the Naperville Public Library. The library recently rolled out the mobile app that will allow residents to check out materials, place items on hold, pay fines, search the catalog, ask librarians questions, and check out e-readers as well. The library app will also allow readers browsing at a bookstore to scan a book's bar code to see if the Naperville Public Library has it available.
