First Community Bank — Naperville, 2728 W. 75th St., plans to move to a new location at Naperville Plaza by late fall.

They will renovate a storefront that has a history of banking at 24 W. Gartner Road. It was home to Washington Bank & Trust in the 1970s, founded by a group of local businessmen, including Dick Wehrli.

First Community Bank – Naperville team members Pat Benton, market president; Rita Juplo, teller manager; Mike Thiel, commercial account representative; and Mary Jane Leisten, retail banker are preparing for their upcoming move to 24 W. Garner Road in Naperville.

“Naperville Plaza is the perfect location for First Community Bank — Naperville; this is where our customers shop. These are the people we believe we serve best,” said Scott Wehrli, a member of the board of directors. “Adding a bank to this shopping center will make it a one-stop destination for Naperville residents.”

First Community Bank — Naperville will be updating and upgrading the retail space and adding a drive-through lane around the building. The focus of the bank is growing the local economy, including loaning local money to Naperville-area businesses. FDIC insured, First Community Bank is a branch of First Community Bank of Joliet.
