3 THINGS TO KNOW TODAY

1 Twitter, Comcast sign TV partnership

NEW YORK — Twitter and Comcast signed a partnership that will let viewers access TV shows and buy movie tickets directly from a tweet, deepening the short messaging service's ties to television programming. Twitter and Comcast said Wednesday a new feature that's part of the deal will let customers of Comcast's Xfinity TV service tune in to programs by clicking a "see it" button in a tweet. In a statement, Comcast CEO Brian Roberts called it "an instant online remote control." The button will allow Twitter users who are also Comcast customers to set DVRs, tune in to shows online, on TV or on mobile devices.

Businesses interested in having a booth at the expo can call the chamber office at (630) 627-5040 for more information.

New website launches

NAPERVILLE — Buddingh & Associates recently announced the launch of a redesigned website. The website, BuddinghAssociates.com, is being relaunched with responsive design technology. Responsive Web Design is a new website format that "responds" to whatever device the site is being viewed on. Instead of being a static page, this new kind of site uses a fluid grid to determine where the webpage elements should go depending on the device.

President Barack Obama listens as Janet Yellen, vice chair of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, speaks at the White House Wednesday after the president announced he is nominating Yellen to be chair of the Federal Reserve, succeeding Ben Bernanke.
